Re: Voluntary Return of Olympic Gold Medal

Dear Dr. Rogge:

I was named the Olympic champion and awarded the gold medal for the Men's Individual Time Trial cycling race at the 2004 Athens Olympic Games.

As you may be aware, last year I publicly admitted using performance enhancing drugs and blood doping during my cycling career. At that time I turned over my 2004 Olympic gold medal to the United States Anti-Doping Agency (USADA) and resolved to do whatever I could to assist USADA with its investigation into doping in the sport of cycling.

Although I did not use drugs during the 2004 Olympic Games, I did so in advance of the Games and cannot exclude the possibility that I experienced a residual benefit from my rule violations. I also recognize that anti-doping rules generally require disqualification of competitive results following a rule violation.

I want you to know that I regret using performance enhancing drugs and hope through my example and future efforts to discourage others from using performance enhancing drugs.

Thank you for your personal commitment to drug free sport and for the efforts undertaken by the IOC to promote clean sport. I appreciate and respect the high ideals for which the Olympics stand and, consistent with those ideals, am asking USADA to return to you my Olympic gold medal.

Accordingly, please withdraw my name from the official record of Olympic champions and note that I am disclaiming any interest in the Olympic gold medal from the Men's Individual Time Trial cycling race at the 2004 Athens Olympic Games.

Sincerely,

Tyler Hamilton
